Arizona Citizen: Prof. Blake, in writing the Citizen from Chicago, takes occasion to express the view that the recent discovery of natural coke in abundance in nearly horizontal beds in the Sonora coalfield is immensely important to Arizona, and the industries of the whole southwest. It promises to give cheap fuel for all purposes, for metallurgical work especially, for the quality is said to be excellent. And it may be used probably to advantage on locomotives and for general steam generation. The occurrence is to be described at the meeting of the mining engineers in San Francisco by Prof. Dumble, the discoverer, while exploring for account of the Southern Pacific Railroad company.
